

December, 2011

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to provide Adam Rothenberger with a letter of recommendation.

At the Winnipeg Sun, Adam held the position of Sales and Marketing Coordinator for the Circulation Department. Not only did this role encompass a variety of sales and marketing related responsibilities, but as a small department, he was also trained on a number of business administrative duties which he performed flawlessly.

From the start, I was very impressed with Adam's abilities, attitude, and commitment. He exuberated pride in everything he did and his work showed great attention to detail, creativity, and skill. What he lacked in experience was made up in ambition and effort. In fact, it was not uncommon for him to train and develop new skills on his own time (under his own initiative) to take advantage of new technologies for greater results at work. There was never a challenge too big for him.

It was unfortunate for the Sun that his position had to be eliminated. However, I am confident that he will make a success of himself anywhere he lands. Adam was a model employee who showed great professionalism and worked very well in both team and individual settings. If at all possible, I would hire him back in a heartbeat!

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Tony LeBlanc", written over a light gray rectangular background.

Tony LeBlanc
Director of Circulation
The Winnipeg Sun